PKSAFETY

STAY SAFE. LOOK GOOD

Welcome

The UK's preferred Health + Safety EXPERTS and SUPPLIERS

A little about us

Renowned as a reliable Health and Safety supplier and advisor for the UK's working environment.

Our success is built on our core values;
Respect, Teamwork, Determination and Results.

Heritage is important to us. Established in 1973 PK Safety is a family-run business in South Wales supplying high quality PPE, workwear, safety equipment and janitorial supplies.

Our name is the brand. In the 70's and early 80's the South Wales coal industry was thriving. Barry was the largest port for coal exportation with Cardiff following closely behind. PK Construction was formed in Cardiff to service this booming industry that is now such a huge part of South Wales history.

In 1983, PK Construction evolved to PK Safety and began servicing broader industries due to the steady closures of the coal mines and the growing need for a reliable supply of PPE.

Over the last 40 years, PK Safety has advanced to meet client needs investing in heat-seal and multi-colour embroidery machinery to expand our garment decoration department. This area has seen huge growth with the personalisation of products proving hugely popular across all industries.

Brand Your Business. Embroidery Expertise

With large capacity multi-colour embroidery machines on site we are able to offer outstanding quality logo embroidery. Lead times are short, meaning our customers can rely on us for delivery of quality garments when they need quickly.

Embroidery visually displays logos, tag-lines and names very effectively, creating a visual brand identity and making it easy for your clients to identify workers and operators.

It's not just logos we can apply names or messages too!

Tax tabbing

The preferred method of garment decoration for corporate suiting. This method offers a subtle way of identifying your garments as part of your branding and marketing and retains the professional look and feel of your corporate suiting package.

All Work + Business wear can include tax tabbing - optional extra.

Heat transfer

We offer Heat-sealing for a wide range of work wear. This method of garment decoration works effectively for both complex and simple designs.

Ideal for use on Hi-Vis and outerwear, this is the choice for companies with workers out in the elements!

Screen printing

This is the option for the big and bright designs!

Go for this option when you have a vibrant and colourful design you want to communicate to the public.

Bespoke wear

We work with global manufacturers to offer you a bespoke clothing service. You can choose almost everything, from the fabric, colours, design and labels. Giving you the chance to create a company image that is yours, please be mindful minimum order quantities and lead times can vary.

Our brand

Our innovative brand Scorpi are products you can trust. Through our brands we are able to offer quality, reliability and expertise. Our brands differentiate us making PK Safety the preferred health and safety experts and suppliers.

Easy : Pack

Our individual Easy : Pack service is perfect for customers who require clothing to be supplied solely for each person - removing the inconvenience of sorting and distributing.

Each employee receives a personalised pack containing all the clothing that they require plus order forms with product styles, colours and sizes.

Audits + bespoke technical service

We're passionate about offering the very best PPE and Clothing to our customers so naturally carry out an extensive audit of your current PPE. We examine your workplace, jobs, tasks and current PPE. From this we present a report recommending products along with budgetary requirements which enables us to offer you the perfect solution.

We also offer a bespoke technical service, a specialist recommendation process for both complex and simple requirements. If you have a unique safety problem let us know we can create a unique solution.

Accreditations

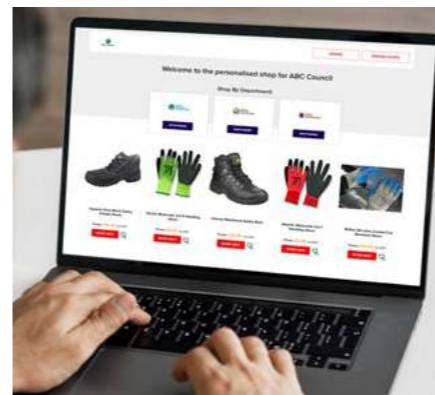

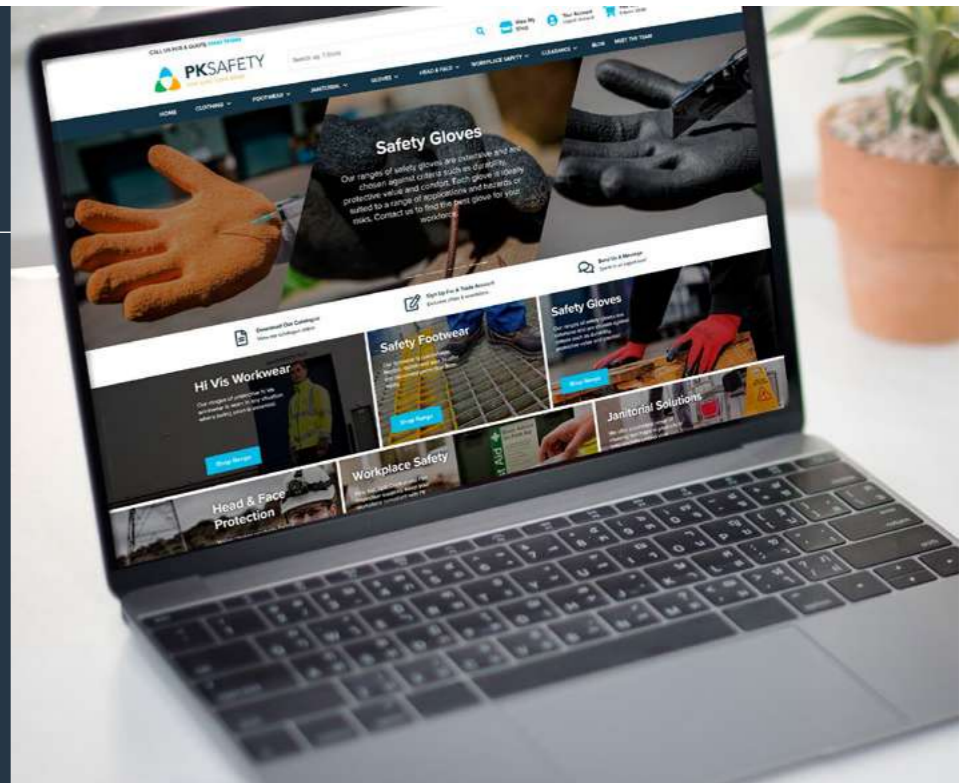

These accreditations mean that PK Safety have a professionally recognised level of service and work hard to maintain our high levels of service to all the different industries and sectors we supply with protective clothing and equipment.

Our Website.

Full of helpful tips, guidance and explainers on PPE and Janitorial, Workwear and Workplace safety.

We like to make things accessible for our customers so we have recently re-launched our website. This is where our full product range can be found, along with a bank of helpful tips, guidance and explainers on PPE and workwear selection and the safety standards that our products are certified to. Our website is also an online ordering portal built to make ordering essential supplies as easy as possible for our customers.

Online Ordering Portal

Our portal offers customers access to a secure online area where they can access their saved product catalogues and price lists and can order the items they require. The portal has the ability to manage several departments and separate logins with one secure account; this gives our customers the ability to review and manage the spend of each area of their operation. The ordering portal helps our customers eliminate any product or cost inaccuracies and streamlines the process of procuring their PPE.

Knowledge Hub

We're passionate about helping our customers get the best products for their application and have worked hard over the years to build a team of experts able to confidently and accurately assist our customers with relevant and up-to-date advice. Our website is going to form the latest addition to this team as we're hosting all our industry know-how so you can quickly and easily access it whenever you need to.

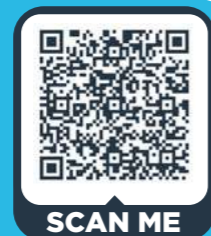

Garment Decoration

A big part of ordering workwear for our clients is getting the right logo displayed correctly so that their brand is visible. We designed our website with ease of ordering our ultimate goal and this applies to ordering garment decoration too. We've created a system that allows you to easily upload new designs as well as re-ordering existing ones.

WORKWEAR

We specialise in tailoring your workwear to your company needs. With garment decoration and bespoke items we'll help you portray an image which reflects your company.

Workwear To Protect Your Workforce

Do you need the workwear to protect your operatives from any workplace or task-related risks? If you do then you'll need to make sure that it's certified to the relevant safety standard for that risk. Some of the more common standards are:

EN ISO 20471
Hi-Visibility Clothing

RIS 3279 TOM
The industry standard for clothing used in the rail sector

EN 343
Protection against wet/foul weather

EN 342
Protection from cold weather/conditions

EN 11611
Protective clothing for welding activities

EN 11612
Protection from heat, flame and thermal risks

EN 61482-2:2020
Protection from the thermal hazards of an electric arc

If you do need protection then make sure that the garments are certified to the correct standard and check the ratings. Give us a call or check out our blogs on safety standards to learn more.

Features

You'll need to think about the features you want your clothing to have.

3-layer textiles for extra insulation and comfort

Triple stitched main seams for increased durability

Interactive garments for extra functionality

A lining for extra warmth

Final Check

The workers will be required to wear the garments you select, always check worker take-up.

The last thing you need to check is whether or not your workers like and will use the garments you've chosen. Without them using the items your purchases are worthless!! Check out our "worker take-up" advice on our website and get in touch if you want to set up a workplace trial to make sure your clothing is the best fit for your organisation.

ISO 20345 The Industry Wide Safety Standard

Covers:

Safety

- Shoes
- Trainers
- Boots
- Wellingtons

ISO 20345 is the industry wide safety standard for protective work footwear. It covers, shoes, trainers, boots and wellingtons. All footwear certified under ISO 20345 have a protective toe cap that protects the user from impacts to the top of up to 200 joules and 100 joules to the sides of the toecap. This cap can be made from steel or a composite material. To help companies decide what footwear they need there are several ratings that are issued to each piece/model of footwear.

			Protective Toe Cap	Enclosed Heel	Antistatic Sole	Fuel Resistant Sole	Energy Absorbent Sole	Water Resistant Upper	Midsole
SB	Clog, Shoe or boot	Leather, Textile	Y	N	N	N	N	N	N
S1	Shoe, Trainer or Boot	Leather, Textile	Y	Y	Y	Y	Y	N	N
S2			Y	Y	Y	Y	Y	Y	N
S3			Y	Y	Y	Y	Y	Y	Y
S4	Wellington	Water Resistant Polymer	Y	Y	Y	Y	Y	N/A	N
S5			Y	Y	Y	Y	Y	N/A	Y

ISO 20345

You can get more detail on the ISO 20345 standard on our website. An important part of choosing your footwear is getting the right sole. There are a variety of different soles that you can choose from:

- Rubber - Hard wearing and durable, has high resistance to most chemicals and heat
- Polyurethane (PU) - A light and comfortable sole designed for workers who have low usage
- Dual Density PU - A strengthened form of PU for workers who want to combine comfort with increased durability
- PVC/Nitrile - The ultimate in chemical resistance and durability
- Thermo Plastic Urethane (TPU) - A treated plastic that is lightweight and offers great slip resistance
- PU/Rubber - This sole type combines the comfort of PUR and durability of Rubber for the best possible experience and cost-effectiveness

Effectiveness

Choose a material that is comfortable and suitable for the environment

You also need to consider the upper of your chosen footwear as an important factor in ensuring effectiveness. You'll want to choose a material that is comfortable and suits the environment in which your operatives work. For instance waste collectors will want something that is waterproof like our Gore-Tex Hurricane Safety Boot.

Safety Glove Ratings Choosing The Correct Glove

Choosing the correct glove for the application is vital to keep your workforce protected.

Choosing the right gloves is really important for making sure that your workforce is protected, comfortable and productive. Generally protective gloves will fall under 1 (or more) of 4 different categories; mechanical risks; thermal (cold) risks; heat & flame risks and chemical risks. Each of these areas has a safety standard under which gloves are certified, below is our summary of each one. For more information you can get in touch with or visit our blog section on our website, this has loads of useful tips and guides and we're always adding to it.

EN388

EN388 is the standard for gloves that protect from mechanical hazards or risks. This includes cuts, tears, punctures, abrasions and impacts. Under the standard a glove is given a rating for each of these areas, the higher the rating the greater the protection provided. It's really important that you include workplace trials in your consideration of mechanical protection as the tests can sometimes differ from real life applications.

EN511

The standard for cold (or thermal) protection is EN511. Ratings are provided on protection from convective and contact cold as well as water permeation. Find out what rating you should specify in our blog on EN511. We recommend considering using liner gloves alongside other protective options to increase the protection offered as well as looking at certified "thermal" options.

EN407

Protection from flame and heat risks is hard to accurately specify, however you can use the standard EN407 to get well on your way. By looking at each risk area in the standard you can split up your tasks and create an accurate specification. The risk areas are exposure to flame, contact heat, convective heat and exposure large and/or small splashes of molten metal.

EN374

Getting the right protection for chemical risks is hard! 2 standards will help you: EN374 will tell you what chemicals each glove will protect from whilst EN 16523-1 will help you with the breakthrough times the gloves operate at. We definitely recommend getting in touch to discuss your requirements in more detail.

Importance of Head and Face Protection

Understanding the importance of head and face is vital in the workplace.

Head & face protection is really important in terms of workplace safety. There are 4 main areas you need to ensure are safe and protected; the head, the eyes, the ears and the respiratory system. If you have any questions then get in touch with us on:

01443 741999 or give our blogs a read for more in-depth information.

Head

The main standard for certifying head protection is EN 397. This specifies shock absorptive properties as well as protection from penetrative risks. For a higher level of protection, you can specify a helmet that is certified to EN 14052, this is for high performance safety helmets and specifies higher levels of protection as well as protection in additional areas (such as shock absorption to the side of the helmet as well as the top).

Eyes

The standards for safety eyewear are EN 166 and EN 170. The rating provided under EN 166 assesses the mechanical properties of the eyewear. Ratings are provided to indicate the level of impact they can protect wearers from, as well as other features such as resistance to scratching or fogging and mechanical performance at extreme temperatures. EN 170 provides a rating that summarises the performance and protection by the lens of the eyewear. This includes protection such as a welding filter, IR removal or sunlight filter as well as denoting the shade of the lens.

Ears

If the noise level in your workplace exceeds averages of more than 80dB ear protection must be offered to workers. Where it is above 85dB ear protection is mandatory. The ear protection provided should reduce the noise level of the workplace (or area) to below 80dB but not lower than 75dB. The level of noise reduction provided by a piece of ear protection is noted as the products "SNR" (or "Single Noise Reduction").

The Respiratory System

It's really important that you have a thorough understanding of what airborne hazards are present in your workplace. These could be dusts, mists, fumes, gases or vapours. You'll need to know what hazards you need to protect your workers (if any) as well as the level of contaminant present. Once you know these, you'll be able to decide what protective system to use and also what filters you'll need. For more advice on this get in touch with us.

Hand Care. Prevent Skin Disorders

Taking good care of your hands doesn't stop with gloves! Implementing a skin care system where operatives use barrier cream, cleansing lotions and moisturisers is a crucial part of preventing occupational skin disorders like contact dermatitis. A great way of doing this is to use our hand care boards created for the Greven range of superior hand care products

It can be really useful to use different colour cleaning equipment for specific areas throughout your facility. This can help make cleaning more efficient and effective. As a general guide there are 4 base colours used throughout the janitorial sector: Blue, Green, Red and Yellow.

Blue

BLUE is used for general areas and cleaning; it is the most common for this reason.

Green

GREEN is used in kitchens and food preparation/canteen areas.

Red

RED is for toilets and bathrooms.

Yellow

YELLOW is used in areas with infection risks or in washroom areas.

Professional Skin Care Programme

We offer our customers a powerful system for the effective prevention of occupational skin diseases. This concept, which takes into account the various skin care conditions and contaminations which may occur in different industrial sectors.

Skin Protection

Before and during work

Skin protection products support the natural barrier function of the skin. This is done, for example, by means of a protective film or skin-strengthening properties.

Skin Cleansing

During and after work

Cleansers shall be selected according to the type and degree of dirt. The rule applies "as gently as possible - as strongly as necessary."

Skin Care

After work

Skin care products support the skin's own regeneration and thus strengthen the skin's natural barrier function.
